

The Adoption Option:

Every family grieves in their own way, in their own time. For some bereaved families, the thought of going through an anxious subsequent pregnancy is just too much to bear. For some parents there may be complicated fertility issues. In addition, many families may reach the conclusion that their loss is pointing them in another direction...to the adoption option. There are so many beautiful children in the world who need forever families, so please take your time to explore the links on this page. It may be the beginning of an incredible journey for you!!!

Please keep in mind that adoption does not preclude families from experiencing another loss. Unfortunately, adoption placements can fall apart; and sometimes in private adoptions, the birth mother can change her mind and decide to keep her baby.
